Dear Al:

Although it was a sad day on Friday it was nice to see you and Bev at Ethel's service. Ethel was one of the great people in my life as I spent considerable time with Nate and Ethel during the 1950's. She will be missed yet remembered as the most significant person in the history of the Trinity Alps.

Regarding our conversation on on Friday I have enclosed for you the article on the planting of the trout in 1924. Also find enclosed several articles on Jesse's blast of the Frorest Service. Clearly Jesse was a prophet on predicting the tyrannical activities of the Forest Service.

Note all of the articles were published in 1924, over 80 years ago and for you, myself and our current family members it is nice to be part of that great tradition of pioneering the Trinity Alps and still have a presence there.

Since I will be back and forth for the duration of the summer at my place in the Alps, call ahead it you think you are going to be up my way, remember the key to the gate is [redacted] and it is always there.

Again, it was nice to say hello and hope to see you folks later in the summer.

Best Wishes,

Scott
